FISHERY DEPARTMENT, HAILAKANDI

INTRODUCTION:

The disaster affect in fishery sector is mainly the flood. Flood causes various types of damages to fishery sector. The damages like siltation, escaping of fishes, breakdown of bundhs, water quality pollution etc. which causes economic losses to the farmers.

The Hailakandi district has the potential of natural water bodies like Dholeswari, Katakhal river, Beels, low-lying areas, waterlogged areas and numbers of ponds and tanks. A large number of fishermen are engaged in fishing activities and maintain their livelihood from the income generated from this profession. So, when disaster like flood comes, income source are automatically reduced and hence financial aid is required from Govt.

In this district rainfall generally comes during the month of April to September every year. Fish production and seed production are highly affected during these periods in the private sector culturable ponds.

Vulnerable areas in the district :

Hailakandi district has 5 (five) nos. of developmental blocks viz. Lala, Hailakandi, Algapur, Katlicherra and South Hailakandi. Out of these five developmental blocks Hailakandi, Algapur and Lala dev. blocks are more prone to disaster like floods and these three dev. blocks are considered as most potential block in terms of fish seed and fish production. The remaining two blocks are not frequently affected by flood.

Precautionary Measures: - To cope up with the disaster like flood the following precautions are to be followed:

Before Flood

- 1) To undertake extension measure relating to protect fish & fish seed from the adverse effect of flood by the renovation of embankments and fixing nets on the banks of the pond.
- 2) To conduct awareness camp in the flood prone areas by the respective block staff.

During flood :

- 1) To keep a constant vigil on the flood situation.
- 2) To render technical guidance to the needy farmers for protection of surviving fishes & raising of such fishes as may be suitable for post flood situation.

After flood :

- 1) To restore & repair embankments of fish tanks etc.
- 2) To make an actual assessment of fishery & other damage related to fish farming.
- 3) To constant association with farmers & advice suitable culture practices (carried over seeds).
- 4) To test the quality of water & advice the farmers to adopt different corrective measures to cope up the situation.

Response:

Natural disasters and other severe incidents have shown the importance of emergency response in order to save lives, minimize damage and ensure continuity of societal functions as well as business operations of the State. Emergency response is not limited to single organizations of the national or state level government; however it is increasingly recognized to make this function multi-organizational and liaise with business/industry and non-governmental organizations. Community participation (established through Community Based Disaster Risk Management activities) in development of response plan and implementation is essential.

Response activities are sequence of actions required including conduct of search and rescue, mobilization of emergency equipment's and services, undertake operations to keep population and assets from harm's way. Response requires immediate activation of functions, high level of planning, understand nature of the hazards/disaster (sudden onset, slow onset, escalating incident), interpretation of warning, gathering of structured information, mobilization/deployment of resources and demonstrate coordination skills while undertaking operations. The framework for response and conduct of response operations is in accordance with the DM Act 2005 and Assam DM Rules 2010. ASDMA will ensure coordination and monitor the implementation of response actions.

Emergency Response Planning

The aim of emergency response is to provide immediate assistance to maintain life, improve health and support the morale of the affected population. Such assistance may range from providing specific but limited aid, such as assisting refugees with transport, temporary shelter, and food, to establishing semi-permanent settlement in camps and other locations. In the case of PWBNDH it also involves initial repairs to damaged infrastructure. The focus in the response phase is on meeting the basic needs of the people until more permanent and sustainable solutions can be found.

The Departments should have detailed response plan in place for each type of disaster. The actions to be taken at different times and the responsible person within the divisions should be identified in the response plan. The response actions for such disasters that can be forewarned (e.g. flood) will start from 72 hours before the occurrence. The response actions for such disasters that cannot be forewarned (e.g. Earthquake) will start immediately after the occurrence of the disaster. The following formats can be used for emergency response planning. The response planning should be prepared for each type of disaster.

Own machineries and contractors machineries engaged in PWD works with RFID tagged will be kept ready for Emergency Response. The instantaneous location of all the machineries will be monitored in SEOC (State Emergency Operation Centre).

The entire state will be divided into some grids in the form of microzonation of the state for better management during disasters.

Recovery & Rehabilitation

Floods/hydro-meteorological hazards based on weather information can be detected in advance with good level of accuracy. Modeling/assessments of hazard are undertaken by nodal agencies of the Government and this information can be analyzed with vulnerability data sets to determine potential threat/impact scenarios. These information products generated from analysis inform or translate into advisories, determination of threat levels, alert messages and warning information for line agencies/ESFs and public for taking appropriate actions

Weather induced events can be simulated in advance and impact analysis products in the form of maps etc. can be generated. Predicting damage/scenarios are simple measures which inform the possibilities of immediate future and risks associated should the hazard severity persist or increase with respect to time. Impact analysis tools guide response better.

Use of modern communication and information technology tools is crucial for effective and efficient for early warning in disaster management. The communication and IT tools would be utilized for compiling of information, dissemination, and for spread of forecasting and early warnings. The digital mapping of resources would be done and the same would be hosted in web based portals for easy access and retrieval .These tools can be used in the following areas:

- i. Creating decision support system for the policy makers, disaster managers and responsible officers at all levels.
- ii. Real time dissemination of early warning to the all the stakeholders etc.
- iii. Information and broadcasting mediums such as television, radios, FM stations etc. can be used keeping in view their geographical reach and availability.
- iv. Emergency communication system during disasters.
- v. Collecting information on damage and needs assessment.

The PWBNDH Disaster Management Cell will be based on 3 (Three) functional wings under the command & control structure. They are namely, the Operations Wing, the Planning Wing, and Logistic Wing. It consists of the following functional wings:

- Operational Wing
- Planning Wing
- Logistics Wing

DM Operational Wing

The operations wing's core missions include coordination & response in the disaster management exercise. This wing will consist of units at various levels of HQ/zone/circle/division/section operational command converted into Coordination Team (CTs), Task Force (TFs) & Response Teams (RTs).

DM Planning Wing

The Public Works Building & NH Department DM Cell will constitute the Planning Wing (PWBNDH-PW). The key responsibilities of Planning Wing will be resource planning of the requirements, DM needs assessment, the assessment of situations in cases like risk mitigation of buildings, bridges and roads, mobilization planning of the equipped teams, the documentations of all the manuals, plans, mission statements of The Public Works Building & NH Department DM Cell. The Planning wing will consist of eminent personnel from industries, personnel from the department and also independent consultants as technical specialists.

DM Logistics Wing

The Logistic Wing (PWBNDH-LW) of the Public Works Building & NH Department DM Cell's key responsibilities will be divided into two parts, the service and support. The Service Team of the logistic wing's responsibilities will be deployment, maintenance of the telecommunication system, the ERV & ERU systems and other equipment used in disaster management. The Support Team of the logistic wing would provide support service in supply of equipment's and telecommunication systems kits, manage and arrange facilities if required or available for Operations Wing. The Support Team will also act as ground support personnel's during an emergency situation. The Logistic Wing will consist of eminent personnel's from personnel's from the department and also independent consultants as technical specialists

MITIGATION PLAN

PREPAREDNESS

To keep all the Boats / Vessel in River Worthy condition with necessary life-saving fire-fighting and mooring materials.

Approach Road should be constructed in proper way by providing necessary palisading to resist the erosion.

After surveying flood affected areas, river route should be surveyed and boats should be placed at the required ghat point nearer to any departmental ghat point.

Since mechanized boats cannot ply on shallow water, which may cause physical damage to the boat, we have to rely on available hand operated country boats which should be requisitioned by the District Authority.
